

"Girl Gone Woman"

By Diana Karina Cervantes

Who are you my little friend?
The girl that no one could defend?
I sit in time to contemplate your story.
I know you amidst my current glory.
Memories of life's choreographed events.
Disappointments that caused you to lament.
Now in a whirlwind of reflection.
Taking the now in dissection.
I concentrate finally upon this girl.
She lives and joins me in a twirl.
Realized that for once we connect.
Together we can cause some positive effect.
Little girl, I know you have seen a darkest night.
My heart has felt your deepest fright.
Now join me as we become one.
As we proclaim god to the blazing sun.
Yes, empowered amazing woman.
Truly a vision of beauty, courage, love yet undeniably human
